Don't show your age with your HANDS!!!

Before Hand Lift

After Hand Lift

As we get older, our hands lose the fatty tissue layer below the skin. In addition, the skin gets thinner and loses its elasticity. As a result, the skin becomes more translucent and shriveled and displays the underlying structures like bones, tendons and veins. Over the years hands become spotted with brown spots, wrinkles and bulging veins (as demonstrated by the patient above). Many patients mention that their hands do not go with their newly restored faces from the face lift procedure and seem out of place. Aging is no longer measured by crow's feet and saggy jowls but by the top part of the hands, where thin skin crinkles over time.

To help reduce these issues, Dr. Lille has been offering the "hand lift." During the 10-minute procedure, which costs about $1,500 (depends on the amount utilized), Dr. Lille injects synthetic fillers like Juvéderm under the first layer of skin to plump it up, and TCA chemical peels to reduce or remove sun spots (about $400 - $1,000). The effects, depending on the filler, can typically last about a year. The patient above is 3 months following the hand lift. She received 2.5 cc of Juvederm Plus with some spot TCA treatments. As with any filler, potential complications exist, including infection, skin discoloration, nodule or granuloma formation, asymmetry and skin necrosis. But Dr. Lille adds that these complications are the exception, not the rule. The most common reactions are local bruising and swelling that can last to up to a week. Dr. Lille prefers fat if available due to its longevity, but many patients prefer just coming into the office without any extra hassle of the O.R..
